

Can social protection and labour programmes contribute to social inclusion?

Evidence from Afghanistan, Bangladesh, India and Nepal

Introduction

- Mr. Nick Taylor
Head of Section
DEVCO B3- Employment, Social Inclusion and Protection

Presentation

- Ms. Rebecca Holmes
Research Fellow
Social Protection Programme ODI, Overseas Development Institute, London
- Ms. Elke Kasmann
Head of the Social Protection Team
Division of Health, Education and Social Protection
Deutsche Gesellschaft für Internationale Zusammenarbeit (GIZ) GmbH

Friday, 17th of October 2014, 12h30 – 14h00
Lunch-time Conference - External Cooperation Infopoint

Carrying out fieldwork in Bangladesh. By BDI

In recent years, attention to the impacts of social protection has moved beyond an interest in immediate income and consumption support, to the role of social protection in promoting transformative change. This perspective suggests social protection can not only help people meet their basic needs but also contribute to their long-term wellbeing and broader societal goals of equity, inclusion, social justice and empowerment.

www.odi.org/sp-inclusion