Online Trade in Ivory on the Chinese Web:

A Web User profile

Introduction

The following report is based on preliminary monitoring work of the Chinese Web conducted for the purpose of locating major players who participate in online trade of ivory and ivory products in China, and characterizing their activity on the net. Since online chatter regarding ivory and ivory products in China is virtually endless, and new discussions on the issue appear in forums, social networks and Chinese online shopping websites on a daily basis, this preliminary report is first and foremost aimed at presenting a profile of a typical dealer in ivory products, who makes extensive use of the Web in order to promote his business activities.

To our view, this kind of profile could not only serve as a means to further trace more Web users involved in this trade, thus allowing us to map a Chinese trade network in the future, but would also help to better understand how online ivory trade in China works and thus serve as a basis to penetrate this network by activating virtual entities, who shall take part in the online chatter, directly contact major players and glean more valuable information on the network and its activity.

The profile presented below is based on a web user named zt04010623 and his profile at Baidu Space (百度空间), a popular online social networking service provided by China's internet giant Baidu, which also runs the country's most popular search engine. This specific user was chosen due to his extensive online activity with regards to ivory and his participation in numerous online discussions regarding the issue at several online forums under the roof of Baidu. The first part of the report shall focus on the user's activity inside Baidu Space with special emphasis placed on his involvement in discussions regarding ivory. In the second part of the profile we shall present a brief account of his online activity outside Baidu Space.
