PART I – BRIEF ANALYSIS OF THE CONTEXT AND PAST EU ENGAGEMENT

A. THE STATE OF CIVIL SOCIETY: BRIEF UPDATE ON RECENT DEVELOPMENTS

Introduction

Civil Society plays a vital role for development and governance, is vital to fight inequalities to build inclusive societies; and thereby fulfil the central commitment of the 2030 Agenda on Sustainable Development of leaving no one behind. The priorities of the 2012 Communication, the roots of democracy and sustainable development: Europe's engagement with Civil Society in external relations remains a valid framework, as reiterated in previous Roadmaps (2014-2017), (2018-2020). These priorities are reflected in the NDICI, constitute the core of the CSO Thematic Programme and remain highly relevant for programming;

- Fostering an enabling environment for Civil Society is a vital dimension of the EU priority on Governance, Peace and Security at large. It is also a key condition to ensure the achievement of the SDG's.
- Promoting participation of Civil Society in national, sub-national and sectoral multi-stakeholder policy processes and the responses to the COVID-19 pandemic and other key domestic and international policy processes.
- Strengthening of Civil Society Organisations' capacity to hold authorities accountable, be legitimate representatives of the interest of citizen groups and effectively perform their roles as independent actors of development, governance and public diplomacy.

Key developments in the Civil Society context over the past three years.

- a. The European Union continues its support to the Lesotho Council of Non-Governmental Organisations (LCN), the umbrella organisation under which CSOs in Lesotho are organised. LCN is active in the areas of governance, human rights, and support to open budgets and accountability. It holds the primary coordination and advocacy role for CSOs in Lesotho. However, it has limited institutional capacity particularly related to financial management. Present EU support is in form of a direct grant of EURO 1,5 million, under the 11th European Development Fund. The direct award was justified based on the strategic and unique role LCN holds in Lesotho. The support aims to provide institutional support and capacity development for LCN and its member organisations.

- b. During the period covered by the previous Road Map the Delegation launched four Calls for Proposals. These calls are both under the 11th EDF as well as under thematic instruments, Development Cooperation Instrument and the European Instrument on Democracy and Human Rights (EIDHR). This support is aligned with ongoing support to the EDF 11 priority area governance. The thematic areas covered are fostering of human rights, security sector compliance with the rule of law, youth, gender and entrepreneurship.

To date, ten Civil Society organisations are currently supported either as lead organisation or consortia member. Their activities cover a wide variety of themes.

Update in Civil Society capacity of the past two year – key challenges and opportunities

- a. The Enabling Environment

Over the last three years the legal enabling environment has remained unchanged. CSOs are established with relative ease due to various pieces of legislation in particular the Societies Act of 1966, the Partnership Proclamation, the Deeds Registry Act and the Cooperatives Societies Act of 2000 providing for their establishment. Generally local CSOs have limited capacity. At times they are labelled as 'unwelcome watchdogs' in their quest to ensure respect for the rule of law and state accountability. Recently CSOs have reported difficulties in accessing official Government information. In consultations with the EU, CSOs have expressed that the overall enabling environment is still conducive to their work. However, they also perceive that the enabling environment is shrinking.

- b. Political Environment

Government and politicians recognise Civil Society as legitimate social and political actors that provide systematic opportunities for state and Civil Society to work together. Nonetheless, CSOs feel that at times Government does not sufficiently consult Civil Society and the consultative space is getting more exclusive and out of reach for the wider public (e.g. the National Development Plan II).

Activities of CSOs frequently include awareness raising, for selected topics, and civic education.

Since 2017 Lesotho has embarked on a National Reforms Process. CSOs have been actively involved in the initiation of the process as well as in its execution. During the consultative stage of the process CSOs organised in-district consultations throughout Lesotho and in diaspora communities in South Africa. As an active driver of the overall National Reform Process CSOs are widely welcome and are represented as members in the National Reform Authority, the authority tasked with the overall implementation of reforms.

While CSOs are actively involved in the overall political environment they would welcome more political support by the European Union in terms of political dialogue with a view to maintaining and extending the CSO's role in shaping policies and politics.

c. Resources and Capacity

CSOs lack access to a reliable and continuous source of funds, both domestically and internationally. The number of international partners who provide funding is very limited in Lesotho while domestic funding is virtually absent. The United Nations and the USA, along with the European Union are providers of funds to CSOs. There is a competitive situation among CSOs to secure funding. As a result work of CSOs often is project-based, depending on available funds. CSOs perceive this situation as limiting them in setting their own agenda and priorities. Instead of defining their own priorities, they perceive their work is aligned with and directed by the guidelines and priorities defined by the funding partner. Additionally, CSOs report a lack of institutional and technical capacity.

As part of the Participatory Initiative for Social Accountability Programme (PISA) II it is foreseen to have a Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) between LCN and the Independent Electoral Commission. It is planned that through the MoU the IEC can channel Government funding via LCN to preselected CSOs who continue the implementation after the end of the programme and the exit of GIZ as the implementing partner.

Additionally, under the Institutional Support grant to LCN, one of the expected results is to sign a Memorandum of Understanding between LCN and the Government of Lesotho that would ideally foresee some regular funding for Civil Society.

Due to the lasting COVID-19 pandemic and the respective regulations implemented by the Government of Lesotho in early 2020 it has been difficult and partially impossible for CSOs to implement projects, especially campaigns that require physical attendance. A majority of projects have been implemented "virtually". Aggravating though is the country's under-developed digital infrastructure, which complicated implementation.

B. LESSONS LEARNT FROM THE PAST ENGAGEMENT WITH CSOs

The EU Roadmap 2021-2023 is the third defined strategy for engagement with Civil Society in Lesotho, following the first Roadmap 2014-2017 and the second Roadmap 2018-2020. The EU Roadmap 2021-2023 continues to lay the foundation for engagement with CSOs.

Outlined below are some key lessons:

- a. As there is limited domestic and international funding available, there is a continued need for development partners to support CSOs;
- b. There remains a high level of difficulty with CSO in Lesotho complying with EU rules and procedures. However, international CSOs usually have more experience and find it easier to comply with EU rules. Concerning Calls for Proposals it is evident that international organisations have a higher capacity to respond adequately and with higher quality proposal to guidelines;
- c. There is limited sustainability with EU funded projects as it has become evident that activities usually end after the life-span of the project and hardly go beyond;
- d. Development partners tend to set the agenda, therefore CSOs must collaborate to set their specific objectives.
